Eight Indicted in Garment Biz Corruption

By STEVEN MATTHEWS

(Indicate page, name of newspaper, city and state.)

Daily News

Eight men, including two reputed mobsters and two labor union officials, were indicted yesterday by a federal grand jury investigating corruption in the garment industry here.

The charges against the eight include extortion, conspiracy and bribery. They resulted from a 1½-year investigation in which undercover agents operated a coat company and a trucking firm in the garment center.

The investigation was conducted by city police, the Federal Bureau of Investigation, the Internal Revenue Service and the Justice Department's Organized Crime Strike Force.

Three separate indictments were returned yesterday. The first charges that between March and September 1973 six men, including Mathew (Matty) the Horse Iannello and Lawrence (Larry) Paladino, who allegedly have ties to the Mafia, forced the law enforcement officers running the trucking firm Klansky, Wolf's former assistant.

The Master Truckmen is an association of trucking firms that work in the garment center.

The second indictment charges Wolf and two associates, Vito (Vic) Orena and Joseph Beserany, with preventing the sale of the undercover trucking firm to one company between May and November 1974 and forcing its sale to another outfit of their choice.

This was accomplished, accord-to pay them $5,000 to avoid labor difficulties.

Also named in the indictment were Julius (Spike) Bernstein, president of Local 121 of the International Brotherhood of Trade Unions, George Jackson, a business agent for a local of the International Ladies Garment Workers Union, Frank Wolf, director of the Master men of America, and Leonard (Sonny) ing to the indictment by the refusal of the Master Truckmen to accept the first company as a member of the association and by threatening the firm's owners.

The third indictment charges Paladino, who is reputed to be the godson of Frank (Funzi) Tieri, an alleged lieutenant in the crime family of the late Vito Genovese, with having attempted to bribe an IRS agent to stop an investigation of his income tax returns in April 1974.

Arraignment Oct. 28

According to the indictments, Ianiello, 55, lives at 10 Treadwell Drive, Old Westbury, L.I.; Paladino, 45, at 47-31 216th St., Bayside, Queens; Bernstein, 53, at 5-20 Leverick St., Jackson Heights, Queens; Wolf, 69, at 150 West End Ave., Jackson, 50, at 14 W. 182d St.; Klansky, 48, at 211 Harbor View Road, Lawrence, L.I.; Orena, 41, at 72 Buckingham, Cedarhurst, L.I.; and Baserany, 57, at 491 Durant Ave., Staten Island.

All except Bernstein, who is at large, have been arrested and released on personal recognizance bonds of up to $25,000 pending their arraignment Oct. 28.

Conspicuous by his absence at the press conference announcing the indictments was Lt. David Durk, who headed the police team involved in the investigation. Durk, who since has been reassigned against his will to a desk job in Queens, complained bitterly and publicly when the probe was ended prematurely, he charged more than a year ago.

Twenty-two indictments already had been obtained before yesterday as a result of the investigation. Assistant United States Attorney Richard Thornburg indicated yesterday that there might be more.

Inquiry Into New York Garment District Brings Indictment of Eight More Persons

By a WALL STREET JOURNAL Staff Reporter

NEW YORK—The U.S. Justice Department announced three more grand-jury indictments of an additional eight persons as part of a continuing investigation of organized crime's infiltration of this city's garment district.

The charges of extortion and bribery in the latest indictments resulted from two undercover operations: a coat-making company under the code name "Operation Detroit" and a trucking concern under the code name "Operation Cleveland."

Both concerns operated like coat makers or truckers except that employees were undercover "witnesses" or policemen. The crime-fighting special force involved includes Justice Department investigators, Federal Bureau of Investigation agents, Internal Revenue Service agents and city policemen.

Threat of Labor Dispute

In one of the indictments announced yesterday, six persons were charged with extorting $5,000 from Gerro Trucking Co. the undercover trucking concern, with the threat of a labor dispute.

Named in this indictment was Frank Wolf, director of Master Truckmen of America Inc., which isn't further identified in the indictment. Leonard, "Sonny" Klansky, Matthew Ianiello, Lawrence A. "Larry" Palidino, Julius "Spike" Bernstein, president of Local 121 of the International Brotherhood of Trade Unions, and George Jackson, business agent of Local 102 of the International Ladies Garment Workers Union.

As of late yesterday, FBI agents still were seeking Mr. Bernstein. The others appeared in federal court here and were released on bail. Arraignments for pleadings will be Oct. 28. Maximum sentence for extortion is 20 years imprisonment and a $10,000 fine.

Mr. Palidino also was named in a separate indictment on a charge of seeking to bribe an IRS agent with $500. Maximum sentence for this offense is 15 years and a $20,000 fine.

Economic Injury

Under the other indictment, Mr. Wolf, named in the first indictment—and two others, allegedly conspired to obtain Gerro, the undercover trucking company, and $5,000 of Gerro's funds. They did this, it is claimed, by threatening economic injury to Sal Dan Trucking Inc., Gerro's successor, by refusing to accept Sal Dan as a member of Master Truckmen of America. And, under such threat, ordered Gerro to buy back its former business from Sal Dan and later sell it to J. & G. Trucking Co. The other persons named in this indictment are Vito Orena and Joseph Beserany.

Operations "Cleveland" and "Detroit" have resulted in the indictment of a total of 22 other persons under former announcements, according to Richard L. Thornburgh, U.S. Assistant Attorney General, criminal division. The charges have ranged from illegal receipt of money by union officials to perjury and to sale of stolen goods.

Thus far, 12 of these persons have pleaded guilty or been convicted and 11 of these have received sentences ranging from two months to five years. Out of a total of $14.9 million of stolen securities and textiles (hijacked from trucks) involved in these cases, a total of $3 million has so far been recovered, Mr. Thornburgh said.

8 Indicted in Graft In Garment District

By MARCIA CHAMBERS

A Federal grand jury has indicted eight persons, including two reputed underworld figures, two union officials and two leaders of a trucking association, on charges of conspiracy and extortion in an alleged rakedown operation in the garment district.

The criminal charges were described by Federal law enforcement officials as the first major set of indictments growing out of Project Cleveland, an innovative Federal and police investigation that began in March, 1973.

At that time, the police secretly purchased the Gerro Trucking Corporation for $60,000.

In an attempt to apprehend rackets who work for organized crime and fleece businessmen in the garment district.

A Federal undercover agent operated the company in a two-room suite at 1441 Broadway, which was a wily businessman and former convict named Goldfarb.

Goldfarb, who is 53 years old, would later complain to police officials in Washington.

about the abrupt ending of the investigation in the fall of 1974 and the Justice Department's lack of vigor in prosecuting certain cases deemed "political" in nature.

Subsequently, there were charges and countercharges between law enforcement officers and some allusions to this controversy crept into questions posed at a news conference called to announce the indictments.

The indictments—three sets naming eight persons—were announced by Richard L. Thornburgh, the new chief of the Justice Department's Criminal Division in Washington. In the main, the charges involve purported criminal activities that took place shortly after the Gerro Company was set up and 17 months later when the company was sold.

We did not make any money on the sale, said James Taylor, First Deputy Police Commissioner, who attended the news conference held in the Foley Square offices of William I. Aronwald, chief of the Joint Strike Force Against Organized Crime in New York.

The indictment charges that in the first six months of Gerro's undercover operation, a group of men, including Frank Wolf, the director of the Master Truckmen of America, Inc., which represents employers of some 300 trucking companies, and Julius Bernstein, president of Local 121, International Brotherhood of Trade Unions, arranged for a strike at Gerro's.

until Gerro agreed to pay the defendants $5,000.

The other men named in the conspiracy were Leonard Klansky, who until last February served as Mr. Wolf's assistant; Matthew Ianello, an investor at M. & M. Trading Company at 133 West 50th Street; and according to police records, reputedly a member of the Frank Tieri crime family; Lawrence A. Paladino, owner of the L & P Luncheonette at 2684 Coney Island Avenue in Brooklyn; and according to prosecutor's records, an associate of organized crime, and George Jackson, a business agent for Local 102, International Ladies Garment Workers Union.

Mr. Goldfarb, who was equipped with a recording device throughout the inquiry and whose tape and testimony provide most of the evidence leading to the indictments, said in an interview from another state yesterday that after paying off the $5,000 he was forced to pay out $200 a week to the mob to make peace with the union.

In the fall of 1974 Mr. Aroswald and others said Project Cleveland was becoming too risky to continue, an assumption Mr. Goldfarb and Lieutenant David Durk, who headed the five-man undercover "Cleveland" unit, vehemently oppose to this day. Lieutenant Durk was not invited to the news conference.

The sale of Gerro was the subject of the second indictment against Mr. Wolf, Vito Orena, whom Mr. Goldfarb described as an intermediary, and Joseph Beserany, the former owner of J & G Trucking Company, and the man who was said by Mr. Goldfarb to have boasted on tape that he fixed a case before a Brooklyn Federal judge. That allegation was never substantiated.

In this indictment, the three men are charged with obtaining $5,000 from Gerro through a series of resales to other trucking companies. The Master Truckmen of America was not indicted as a company.

The third indictment charges Mr. Paladino with giving an undercover Internal Revenue Service agent $5,000 to call off an I.R.S. investigation.

OUTLINE OF INDICTMENTS

United States v. Frank Wolfe, et al.

Richard L. Thornburgh, Assistant Attorney General, Criminal Division, United States Department of Justice announced today the filing, by a Manhattan federal grand jury, on October 14, 1975 of three ~~sealed~~ indictments, two of which charge the Director of the Master Truckmen of America, Inc., and others with violation of the Hobbs Act, arising out of a pattern of conduct affecting an undercover trucking company set up by federal and local authorities in New York City's garment center. Among those indicted are a high ranking union official, and a business agent of an ILGWU Local. [Mr. Thornburgh also announced the filing of a fourth indictment which was filed this morning in the Eastern District of New York.]

According to Mr. Thornburgh in early 1973 the Justice Department's Joint Strike Force Against Organized Crime and Racketeering for the Southern District of New York, the New York City Police Department and the Federal Bureau of Investigation launched a joint investigation of organized crime's infiltration of the garment district in New York City. The principal investigative tools utilized were two undercover businesses, one of which involved the operation of a coat company and the other a trucking company, which were given code names of Operation Detroit and Operation Cleveland, respectively. Both undercover businesses were operated by undercover civilian witnesses and undercover New York City Police Officers. While Operation Detroit was financed by Law Enforcement Assistance Administration (LEAA) funds, Operation Cleveland was financed by the New York City Police Department. Mr. Thornburgh stated that the Inspections Service of the Internal Revenue Service also participated in the investigation.

According to William I. Aronwald, Attorney-in-Charge of the Joint Strike Force, the undercover phase of the investigation was terminated in the late Summer of 1974. The Grand Jury investigation which led to the indictments filed on Tuesday was conducted by Michael C. Eberhardt, Assistant Attorney-in-Charge of the Joint Strike Force, and by Strike Force Special Attorney Robert G. DelGrosso.

William I. Aronwald, Attorney-in-Charge of the Joint Strike Force said that the undercover phase of the investigation, which was terminated in the late Summer of 1974, could not have culminated in these indictments without the extraordinarily comprehensive and cooperative efforts of the Federal Bureau of Investigation and the New York City Police Department, as well as the outstanding individual jobs done by both the undercover civilian witnesses and the undercover police officers. Mr. Aronwald noted that this investigation has once again demonstrated the crucial need for substantive cooperation between federal, state, and local law enforcement agencies.

Mr. Thornburgh stated that the first indictment charges Frank Wolf, Director of Master Truckmen of America, Inc., (MTA), Leonard "Sonny" Klansky - who until February, 1975 was the Assistant to the Director of MTA, Mathew Ianiello, Lawrence A. Paladino, Julius "Spike" Bernstein - President of Local 121, International Brotherhood of Trade Unions, and George Jackson - a business agent for Local 102, International Ladies Garment Workers Union with having attempted to obstruct, delay and affect commerce and the movement of articles in commerce by extortion, in that the defendants obtained $5,000 from Gerro Trucking Company, Inc., the undercover business, by the wrongful use of fear of financial and economic injury to the business of Gerro Trucking Company, Inc. The indictment alleges that the defendants threatened, and did arrange for, the imposition of a labor dispute affecting Gerro until Gerro agreed to pay the defendants $5,000 which represented 10% of the purchase price of Gerro Trucking Company, Inc. Mr. Thornburgh noted that the defendants were also charged in this indictment with conspiracy to violate the Hobbs Act.

According to Mr. Thornburgh the second indictment charges Frank Wolf, Vito "Vic" Orena, and Joseph Beserany with having violated the Hobbs Act. Mr. Thornburgh said that this indictment pertains to acts of the defendants which occurred when the "principals" of Gerro Trucking Company, Inc. sought to sell the business to other persons who were to do business under the name of Sal Dan Trucking, Inc. This indictment charges that the defendants refused to accept Sal Dan Trucking Inc., as a member of Master Truckmen of America, Inc., and ordered Gerro to repurchase its business from Sal Dan and subsequently sell it to J & G Trucking Company. The defendants are also charged with conspiracy to violate the Hobbs Act.

The third indictment announced by Mr. Thornburgh charges Lawrence A. Paladino with bribery of a public official in that the defendant paid an undercover Special Agent of the Internal Revenue Service $500 to induce the agent to unlawfully terminate an IRS investigation regarding Paladino's attempt to evade and defeat his income taxes.

[The fourth indictment, which Mr. Thornburgh stated was filed in the Eastern District of New York by Brooklyn Strike Force Special Attorney Stanley Greenwich charges Paladino with having sought to evade and defeat payment of his income taxes for the years 1968 and 1969 totalling approximately $7,000 and $4,175. respectively.]

An A.M. Chat With the FBI

By JAMES NORMAN

Julius Bernstein seems a good enough name. At least it seemed a good enough name to Julius Bernstein, the one who has been living in Forest Hills for 23 years and has worked for the city since 1937.

The problem is there's another Julius Bernstein in Queens. He lives at 5-20 Leveque St. in Jackson Heights. He does not list himself in the phone book. He calls himself Spike. He is president of Local 121 of the International Brotherhood of Trade Unions.

And, according to an indictment handed up by a federal grand jury yesterday, Spike was one of six men who forced the operators of a garment district trucking firm to cough up $5000 to avoid labor difficulties.

But the trucking company was a front for undercover police agents, who were looking for just that kind of illegal activity on Seventh Ave. So it looked like deep trouble for Spike.

At 7 a.m. yesterday, two FBI agents and a city police detective showed up at the door of Julius Bernstein, the Forest Hills Julius Bernstein, the one who has worked for the city since 1937, and is now a deputy Environmental Protection Administrator.

"It's 7 a.m. and I have these three boobies at the door telling me they're going to break the door down if I don't open up," said Bernstein, still outraged hours later.

"I was in the bathroom and my wife answered the door. They say 'Open the door or we'll knock it down.' My wife comes to get me says 'There's three guys, something about the FBI, you got to go to the door.'"

Bernstein went. "They wanted me to go with them right then, but I told them I had to finish so they let me go back and there's this one FBI agent standing he whole time not 12 inches away, telling me to hurry up."

Bernstein said he went into his room to get changed for work. He reached for a drawer. "Don't touch it," an agent commanded him.

"But my underwear's in that drawer," Bernstein replied. "How am I supposed to get dressed?"

While one of the agents got Bernstein his clothes and questioned him, another grilled his wife in another part of the house, he says.

"He told me what rights I'm supposed to have. I asked him 'What the hell am I supposed to have done?' and he told me it was extortion. I said 'Who the hell am I supposed to have extorted?'"

"A lot of things went through my mind. They were really nervous, and so was I. They didn't do any physical damage, but all I could think about was all those mistaken identity raids where they ripped the house apart. I didn't know what was going on."

Bernstein said he asked the agents if they were sure they had the right man.

"I told them I had to be at work at 7:30, and one of them said 'Whatsa matter, you gotta make a delivery?'"

I told them. Look, I was at Gracie Mansion 'til 1:30 this morning. Or what was that, a little get together?" an agent interrupted, according to Bernstein. After awhile, he said, the agents and the cops began to get the idea that maybe they had the wrong man. So they made a few phone calls and left. FBI supervisor Paul Stapleton called Bernstein after it was all over, according to an FBI spokesman, and apologized for the mistake. He told me it was just a mistaken address," Bernstein said. "I told him, That's not simply an address that scared the hell out of me. I told him, Look mister, if you did that to a person with a heart condition, you would have a dead person on your hands. But he did agree it was a mistake, and he did apologize. Named in the indictment, with Spike Bernstein, were Matthew (Matty the Horse) Ianello and Lawrence Paladino, who have alleged links with the Mafia. George Jackson, an International Ladies Garment Workers Union business agent, Frank Wolf, director of Master Truckmen of America, and Wolf's assistant Leonard (Sonny) Klansky. A second indictment charged Wolf and two associates, Vito (Vic) Orena and Joseph Boscrany, with blocking the sale of the undercover trucking firm to one company and forcing its sale to another. All but Bernstein were arrested.

BERNSTEIN was then taken to the Seventh Floor of the FBI office where he was fingerprinted and photographed. At that time BERNSTEIN was also furnished with a Reading and Waiver of Rights form which he read, stated he understood, and stated that he did not wish to make any statement to the arresting Agents without his attorney present.

While awaiting transportation to the United States Magistrate's office, BERNSTEIN placed a telephone call to his lawyer and to his bail bondsman advising them that he would be arraigned before a United States Magistrate later that morning.

At 10:30 AM, BERNSTEIN was transported to the United States Magistrate's office, Foley Square, New York City, via Bureau automobile.

At 11:40 AM, BERNSTEIN was arraigned before United States Magistrate GERARD COSTELLO, who set bail for BERNSTEIN in the amount of $5,000 cash or surety.
